SOMEONE WHO INSPIRES ME...

Charlie Parker, the jazz musician. When asked about the secret to his success, he said "learn everything you can about your instrument, then forget it all and just play."

MAIN TAKEAWAY FROM A CRISIS

What we strive to achieve in our cases where clients are in or on the verge of crisis is a "quiet kill": killing a case with little to no publicity, business disruption, or harm to reputation. Publicity is usually good for lawyers, but our clients don't want that and we don't want that for them either.

MY EXPERIENCE WITH THE ACADEMY

The Academy brings together practitioners and academics from all over the world, and engages them in substantive dialogue. It provides opportunities to learn, along with meeting new colleagues and making connections.

MY ADVICE FOR FUTURE LITIGATORS

Find a good mentor, and listen to your clients first.

Also, come into the office every once in a while. 90% of success is showing up. Apologies to the NYC comedian who first said that.
